Your Event Musicians presents Manchester's Young Talent

Manchester Young Talent Showcase

What do talented young musicians do with their spare time on bank holiday Sunday? They practice their performance skills by giving a free public concert in Manchester City Centre. The showcase, featuring piano performances from the very best in emerging young talent, will be held in Cross Street Chapel at 3pm on 30th May. Music played is set to include performances of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Mozart, Schubert and Tchaikovsky in an eclectic and dynamic event that is set to be the highlight of the bank holiday weekend.

Benny Hui, the organiser of the event, is extremely excited about the advantages of the showcase. "Young people rarely get the opportunity to perform in a supportive non-competitive environment. Learning the skills of performance is an essential stage of development in any young musician's career. The combination of family members with the general public will help to develop these vital skills."

This is the first time that The Young Talent Showcase has been put on in Manchester, though Mr. Hui, who has taught for a number of years for Royal Northern College of Music, is hoping that the success of this first event will lead to others in the future. "It's a great opportunity for members of the public to listen for free to fantastic live music. I'd love this to be a regular event and hope the public will come along to support our talented young musicians."
